Varied Attractions at the Capital Playhouses

A typical mid-season Washington audience last night filled the National Theatre to capacity for the first performance here of "A Kiss for Cinderella." Barrie's delightful fanciful play, with Miss Maude Adams in the title role. The author himself best describes it as "a fancy, so wonderfully light that it scarcely touches the earth," and those who saw it last night laughed much, wiped away tears occasionally, and applauded vigorously.

The story is to Barrie's best vein, a modernized version of the oldest of fairy tales, and it plays upon all the chords of sympathy, pathos, and humor. All the time the author poses fun at the foibles of the time with his happy faculty of hiding a tear in a laugh.

The fancy gives Miss Adams free rein for all of the artistry and whimsical charm that made her "Peter Pan" so wonderfully appealing and has endeared her to the nation's theatergoers. It is a play that is a play, a wistful, hunger and love-haunted little drudge, given the name of Cinderella by the kind-hearted old artist whose studio she keeps in order.

The story opens with the old artist explaining to "Our Policeman" the mystery of the disappearance of every body from the piece and his favorite food meal, then take a little Diapepsin. There will not be any distress, eat without fear. It's because Pape's Diapepsin "really does" sweeten out-of-order stomachs that gives it its millions of sales annually.

His parodies were also applauded. Olga Boris is one of the most masterful pianists ever seen here, and she was applauded to the echo and forced to respond to several encores.

Earle Cavanaugh heads another success, called "Mr. Inquisitive," in which Ruth Tompkins and four singing young women assist. The movie also plays a part in this sketch.

Nonette, who sings while playing the violin, does both very well, and her vivacity made a hit, despite the fact she has been seen before.

McMahon and Chappelle have a droll number, entitled "How Hubby Missed the Train." The Three Johns open the program, the rapid gymnastics. They are good equilibristes. James Dutton and company close the bill with an equestrian spectacle, in which horses and dogs play a leading part. The Hearst-Pathe news pictorial sits patriotism with scenes of our fighters and other current happenings.

Pathe weekly, and a sojourn in Tokyo with Burton Holmes complete the program.

Those who have read and enjoyed Mary Rinehart's delightful "Sub-Ded" stories, which were recently published in a popular weekly, will find in "Bab's Diary," the first of a series of these whimsical tales to be screened, which was shown at Crandall's Savoy yesterday, an altogether charming production. Margaret Clark is pictured in the role of the boarding school girl heroine, and she lives the character that it would seem that Mrs. Rinehart had no one other than the diminutive favorite herself, in mind when she wrote the story.

Today's attraction will be "The Burglar," featuring Carlyle Blackwell. The program for the rest of the week will consist of the following: Tomorrow, Ethel Barrymore in "The Lifted Veil"; Thursday, Alice Joyce and Marc Mac Dermott in "An Alabaster Box"; Friday, "The Corner Grocer," featuring Law Fields and Madge Evans, is today's attraction at the Apollo. The program for the rest of the week will consist of the following: Tomorrow, Madge Kennedy in "Bab's Diary"; Thursday, Alice Joyce and Marc Mac Dermott in "An Alabaster Box"; Friday, Edward Earle and Betty Howe in "For France"; Saturday, Olga Petrova in "Exile."

The family of James Lansburgh, one of the Capital's most prominent retail merchants, and president of the firm of Lansburgh & Bro., who died yesterday, is today receiving the condolences of civic and business Washington.

Both the board of governors of the Retail Merchants' Association and the board of directors of the Chamber of Commerce will attend the funeral in a body.

Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 2 o'clock from the home, 2011 Fourteenth street northwest, with Rabbi Abram Simon and Rabbi Louis Stern, officiating. A large congregation, conducting the services. Burial will be in the Washington Hebrew Congregation cemetery. At the request of the family there will be no Masonic services.

Funeral services today are for Mrs. Lansburgh's nephews. They are Sol, Henry, Lester, and Stanley Lansburgh, of the firm; Sidney Lansburgh, of Baltimore; Charles Franklin, of New York; and Charles Goldsmith and R. H. Lyons, of Washington.

The resolution, as adopted by the Retail Merchants' Association follows: "Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to take from our midst our distinguished member and fellow-merchant, James Lansburgh, president of the firm of Lansburgh & Bro., Inc.;

Resolved: That we, the members of the board of governors of the Retail Merchants' Association, assembled in special session this 29th day of October, 1917, do hereby assemble as a mark of respect and tribute to the great esteem in which Mr. Lansburgh was held in this community.

A life-long resident of the District of Columbia, Mr. Lansburgh has for the past fifty-seven years, constituted an exemplar among business men. We rejoice at the great and honorable record of service which he has left behind him, for the long period he has conducted his business and lived his life as a shining example of uprightness in character and reliability in dealing with the public.

As a citizen of the District of Columbia, he has been a constant and active member of the Board of Commissioners, and has served on many of its committees. He has been a member of the association for twenty years; Frederick J. Rice, Vice President; Daniel W. Edlin, W. E. Todd, and A. D. Shreve, Secretary; J. Clinton Hilt; Treasurer; A. C. Houghton; H. V. Speelman, W. M. Conrad, Dr. Seneca B. Bain, Adam H. Gaddis, Harry L. Barber, Richard J. Downey, H. C. Cole, Dr. Robert T. Holden, and Judge C. S. Bundy.

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients in a large bottle, at just about the same price, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of fuss.

White hair, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. Just draw all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautiful, dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a definite hair restorative. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

Wood Pile Is Hope Of the Empty Bin When House Is Cold

If you can't get coal, even if you've got money in your jeans to pay for it with, burn wood.

The Forest Service says that two pounds of seasoned wood has a fuel value equal to one pound of coal.

Different kinds of wood have different fuel values, but the foresters say that in general the greater the dry weight of a non-resinous wood, the more heat it will give out when burned.

U. S. WANTS MORE SPEED IN BUILDING OF STEEL VESSELS

Greater speed in steel ship construction is the program of the shipping board. Chairman Edward N. Hurley, of the board, announced today that in order to hasten deliveries on ships now building he had summoned a score or more of the leading Atlantic coast shipbuilders to Washington for a conference tomorrow. Chairman Hurley said that time will insist upon the builders bringing every bit of their resources into play to make available for use at earlier dates than had been scheduled ships that are now under construction.

In some of the remarks, the board has been informed, builders have not pushed construction to its limit because of conditions which they say are beyond their control.

Chairman Hurley said today that if any difficulties exist for which the builders are not responsible the Government will use every power it possesses to remove those obstacles.

Wooden ship building is going ahead at a fast pace.
